Reds Can Do
Without Kroll

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday night the West German government is "quite ready to sacrifice" its ambassador to Moscow, Hans Kroll, as the price for peace with Washington.

It was the most unusual explanation of several put forth in the wake of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's summoning Kroll back to Bonn two days ahead of schedule to tell his side of the story of how reports of new Soviet proposals on Berlin and Germany originated.

JFK Promises
S. Korea Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy met Tuesday with South Korea's revolutionary leader, Gen. Chung Hee Park, and promised his nation "all possible" continued U.S. military and economic support.

McMillan Says
Progress Made

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Tuesday the Western powers are making progress in hammering out a unified negotiating position on Berlin.

At the same time, diplomatic sources pictured a Soviet proposal on Berlin floated in Moscow last week as designed to lure the Western powers into a weak bargaining position.

Macmillan told the House of Commons: "I am very hopeful we shall get an agreed Western position. At that point, negotiations in one form or another, at one level or another can begin, but I do not think it would be helpful if I were to go into details."

Agencies Asked
To Coordinate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy ordered government offices outside Washington Tuesday to strengthen "significantly" their coordination and to mesh more closely their experience and resources to do a better job and save money.

To kick off this project, he directed the Civil Service Commission to establish a board of federal executives in each of the commission's 10 administrative regions, without hiring extra people for the assignment.

Wants Pay For Collegians

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A University of Chicago economist suggested Tuesday that students should be paid to go to college.

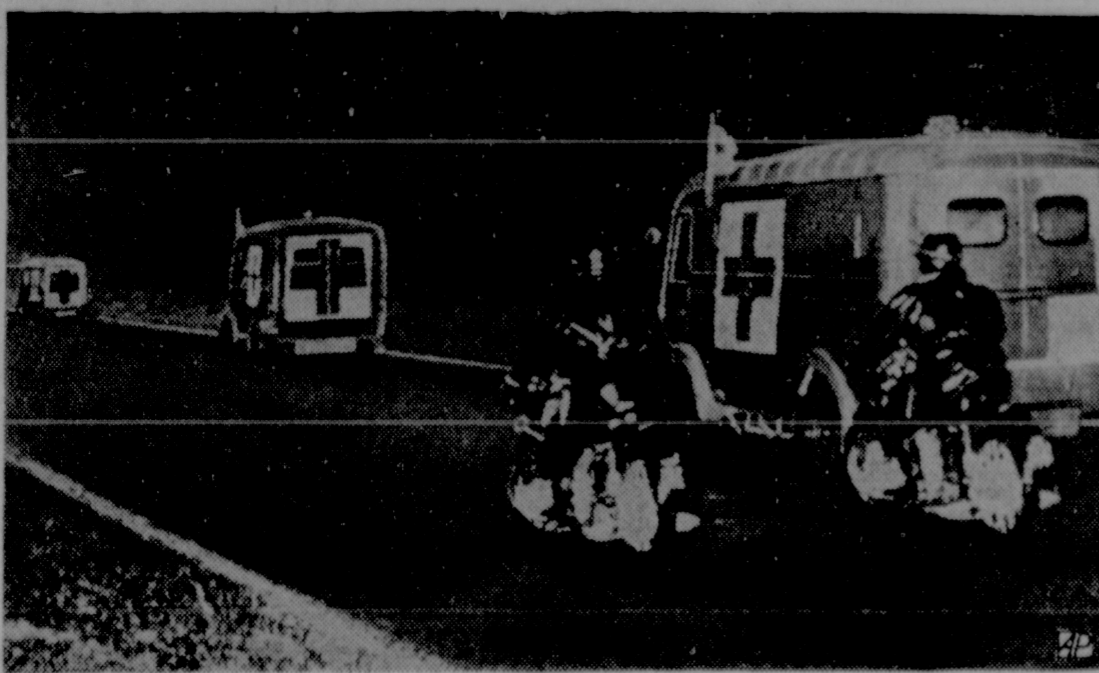

Prof. H. W. Schultz said that such a practice would be one way of ending the waste of students' time and bringing about basic reforms in higher education.

Schultz told the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities that colleges and universities seriously under-estimate the value of the time students spend at college.

Study Snow In Antarctica

SOUTH POLE STATION, Antarctica (AP)—Deep beneath this snow, scientists are studying snow that fell long before the American Revolutionary War.

They say their research suggests the possibility of building camps of foam plastic and food storage sites in caves far beneath the surface. This was reported by researchers who took two reporters into an experimental cave dug 90 feet deep into the snow and ice cap covering the bottom of the world.

Marcapagal Leads Garcia In Philippines Presidency Race

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Diosdado Macapagal took a steady mounting lead Wednesday over President Carlos P. Garcia in returns from the Philippines general election.

Macapagal, candidate of the opposition Liberal party, was increasing his margin by the hour. With nearly a third of the count in from Tuesday's balloting, he had pulled ahead of Garcia by more than 380,000 votes, with unexpected strength in areas previously held by the ruling Nacionalista party.

Macapagal had hit hard on the issue of corruption in government. Observers had predicted one of the closest presidential races in the history of this island nation.

With about 31 per cent of the vote tabulated, the count was: Macapagal—1,293,979; Garcia—912,914.

The Commission of Elections said it expected a total vote of about seven million.

Macapagal, who waged a vigorous campaign throughout the country, was pulling his running mate, former Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, along with him in the hotly contested vice presidential contest.

Unlike the practice in the United States, this race is decided separately and the two top executives can come from different parties.

Sergio Osmeña Jr., son of the late president, running as an independent, was in second place. Garcia's running mate, Sen. Gil Puyet, was trailing far behind.

The count: Pelaez—759,677; Osmeña—728,720; Puyet—492,648.

In the races for the eight Senate seats at stake, the opposition Liberals led in seven and the ruling Nacionalista party in one.

All 104 House of Representatives also were at stake in the balloting, the quietest national election day in the 15-year history of this Asian island republic.

Macapagal, 51, leader of the Liberal party, got his early lead in returns from traditionally anti-administration areas and other areas in Luzon, where he was born.

Garcia's strength lies in the Southern province of Bohol, and that vote was not expected until late in the counting.

Both Garcia and Macapagal are committed to a pro-Western, anti-Communist foreign policy. They waged their campaigns on domestic issues.

Macapagal sought to upset Garcia's bid for a second four-year term on the issue of corruption in government. Garcia campaigned on his so-called Filipino-first policy aimed at eliminating alien control of the nation's wealth.

Huge White Crosses Cause
Confusion In West End Area

THE MYSTERY of "huge white cloth crosses" in the Saylorburg area was solved last night after many hours of anxiety.

State Police, Civil Defense and borough officials of Saylorburg began a widespread investigation when about five or six crosses were spotted on the ground—one of them on property of the Mt. Eaton Church.

George Kitchen, an official of the Saylorburg Fire Co., reported last night that the crosses were placed for a proposed aerial survey. The survey will be conducted by the Clay Company of Kunkletown, a subsidiary of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. It was not learned immediately for what purpose the survey was to be conducted.

The crosses, which measured three feet wide and twelve feet long, were laid out on the ground. They were held down by stones and rocks with an iron stake placed through the center of the cross.

It was at first thought that some pranksters had been in on the act. It wasn't until many hours later the real purpose of the crosses was discovered.

The residents of the area were not notified of the company's aerial survey. This was one reason why the "markings" created so much confusion.

Rev. Robert Zuch, pastor of Mt. Eaton Church described the crosses as made of "good white flannel cloth." He discovered one cross on the church lawn late last night.

The company's plant is located along Chestnut Ridge between Saylorburg and Kunkletown.

Residents of Gilbert, Mt. Eaton area and other parts of western section of Monroe County ran down all sorts of rumors before the mystery of the crosses was solved. Some of the rumors were: "Men from Marx landing." "A religious cult is starting a campaign." "It's the work of pranksters." State Police, Civil Defense officials and other law enforcement agencies were notified of the "crosses laying on the ground out Saylorburg way."

Violent Snowstorm Isolates
Communities In N. Mexico

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A violent wintry storm belted the south-central and southwestern United States Tuesday, isolating communities, blocking highways and stranding hundreds of other persons in New Mexico.

An estimated 450 hunters were trapped by four feet of snow that fell in the mountainous area between Capitan and Carrizozo, N.M. Thirty soldiers from the White Sands missile range joined in the search for them.

An estimated 150 people were stranded in a store in Dunkin, N.M., near Alamogordo.

Three heavy-duty road graders were sent with the soldiers to cut through drifts. A military field kitchen was set up in Capitan to feed the hunters and their rescuers.

A National Guard unit that rescued several other hunters in New Mexico was trapped for a time near Artesia but managed to dig out.

Heavy snows knocked out communication and power lines north of El Paso, Tex., leaving the New Mexico communities of Deming, Silver City and Lordsburg isolated.

The snow, whipped into towering drifts by blowing winds, fell in an area from New Mexico into the Panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma. Spotty freezing rain was mixed with the snow in northwestern Texas.

Snows up to 14 inches deep closed highways throughout southeastern and central New Mexico.

A cold front, accompanied by rains and snow, was blamed for five deaths in Texas.

An 11-year-old boy drowned in a rain-triggered flood in Houston. A plane crash blamed on the weather killed one person at Canyon. One person was killed on slick streets in El Paso and two perished in traffic accidents on a rain-slicked street near Dallas.

Two separate cold fronts moved eastward in the United States.

One, stretching from New York State into southeastern Louisiana touched off widespread rain from the northern Atlantic states into Tennessee and the Carolinas.

The second front moved across the northwestern part of the country. It caused occasional rain or showers in western Washington and from northern Idaho into Montana.

Snow was mixed with the rain in Montana.

Drizzle dampened the Gulf Coast, but skies were mostly sunny from California into South Dakota and through the Central Plains.

Relatively mild temperatures prevailed east of the cold front. Readings ranged from the 50s in New England to the 60s in Virginia and the 80s in Florida.

Behind the cold front, the Rockies had midday readings in the 20s and 30s.

Lawrence Pleads With ACF
To Retain Plant At Berwick

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. David Lawrence said Tuesday after a meeting with officials of ACF Industries, Inc., that they plan "quite definitely" to close the Berwick, Pa., plant late in 1962 as scheduled.

Lawrence went personally to New York to plead with ACF to reverse the decision that will wipe out the jobs of 1,500 men and chop the economy of Berwick—since ACF is its chief industry—about half. The ACF payroll is $1 million a month.

"They indicated quite definitely there is no turning back," Lawrence said after meeting with ACF Board Chairman William T. Taylor and other officials.

However, the governor left open the possibility the firm might change its plans, pointing out that though Taylor saw no hope for the present he is not foreclosing the possibility of a future reversal.

Lawrence said that the state government will take immediate steps to study the effect of the closing.

"The industrial development authority will be happy to do anything it can in conjunction with local officials and businessmen," he said, mentioning the authority's programs in the Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton areas.

Referring to his visit here, he said "we came here to see if we could save the economic situation around Berwick, to see if there is a chance that ACF will remain in Berwick. There isn't."

Reuther-Carey Report:

AFL-CIO Has Failed To Solve Its Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Reuther reported bitterly Tuesday that the AFL-CIO has failed to solve its internal problems and the 6-year-old merged labor movement is "united in name only."

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, made it clear in a new survey of AFL-CIO problems that it has only been because of his preoccupation with auto industry contract negotiations this summer and fall that there has been a respite in open feuding between rival wings of the federation.

Reuther as president of the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department, to which most of the old CIO unions are affiliated, and James B. Carey, the department's secretary-treasurer, made public a report that will be submitted to the department's biennial convention here Thursday and Friday.

The report pointed out serious policy differences between the industrial unions and the craft unions, most of which formerly were with the old AFL. The craft groups will hold their own convention later this month at Miami Beach, Fla.

The rival groups are building up for a clash of forces at the AFL-

CIO convention to be held at Miami Beach in early December.

The Reuther-Carey report said that industrial unions "are faced with the realization that there has been an almost total lack of progress in all those areas that were recognized as 'problems' when the AFL and CIO united, problems that demanded early solution if the merger was to prove meaningful."

"The past two years have been years of keen disappointment," Reuther and Carey said. "Inter-union disputes have not abated. They have increased."

"Jurisdictional conflict persists.

AFL-CIO unions still boycott the products of other AFL-CIO unions. Affiliates raid each other. One department of the federation continues to compete organizationally against affiliated unions. And unethical organizational literature still provides comfort for the anti-union employer."

The industrial unions' particular gripe is that a decision made by the AFL-CIO convention at San Francisco two years ago, to submit interunion jurisdictional rivalries to a system of binding arbitration, has not been put into effect.

A committee headed by President Al Hayes of the Machinists Union has been working to establish ground rules for such an arbitration system but hasn't been able to win an agreement from the rival industrial and craft union camps.

Reuther's report indicated that the main controversy in the jurisdictional battle is whether the industrial unions or the craft unions should be awarded job rights in maintenance work.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, had no immediate comment on the Reuther-Carey report. However Meany is one of the scheduled speakers at the convention on Friday.

Kroll Says
Statements
'His Ideas'

BONN, Germany (AP) — Ambassador Hans Kroll told Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Tuesday night that his proposals to Soviet Premier Khrushchev on Berlin were advanced as his own ideas and not authorized by the West German government, an official statement announced.

The official version followed angry public denials from Kroll that he had overstepped his authority in talks with Khrushchev in Moscow.

Adenauer had summarily ordered Kroll back from Moscow to face government accusations that he had misrepresented Bonn's position.

The statement said Kroll, a long-time diplomat who has served in Moscow for the past three years, had expressed only his own thoughts on the German and Berlin problems during his meeting with Khrushchev last Thursday.

"These were not authorized by the West German government," the statement said.

There was no indication whether Kroll would lose his job because of the furor that blew up over the proposals he suggested to the Soviet premier.

In an apparent attempt to reassure West Germany's allies that Kroll's proposals for a new status for West Berlin did not represent a one-sided attempt by Bonn to reach agreement with the Communists, the statement added:

"The government will continue, together with its Western partners, to seek for a solution to the German and Berlin questions on the basis of a common understanding."

Left unexplained was the defiant stand Kroll displayed before going in for his showdown talk with Adenauer. Kroll angrily denied committing a diplomatic blunder.

UN Group Overrides West
On Nuclear Weapon Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Asian and African neutrals combined with the Soviet Union Tuesday to push through two proposals attempting to limit the use of nuclear weapons without the inspection and controls demanded by the West.

The defeat suffered by the West in the U.N. Political Committee is certain to be confirmed by the General Assembly. Both resolutions passed by overwhelming margins. The drafts:

—Call for an end to all nuclear tests in Africa and urge all nations not to transport or store atomic or hydrogen bombs on African territory. The vote on this was 57-0, with 42 abstentions.

—Declare the use of nuclear weapons a violation of the U.N.

Charter and a crime against mankind; ask Acting Secretary-General U Thant to explore the possibility of convening an international conference to outlaw the use of nuclear weapons in wartime. This was passed 69-15 with 25 abstentions.

Passage of these resolutions ended the committee's debate on nuclear weapons tests. Approved earlier were U.N. appeals for a resumption of the Geneva test ban negotiations, for a voluntary moratorium on nuclear tests and against the Soviet Union's superbomb explosion last month. Votes of the Afro-Asian nations had been the decisive factor in all the resolutions.

The United States held out against the drive for a declaration against the use of nuclear weapons in any circumstances.

U.S. Delegate Arthur Dean told the committee it would be suicide for any nation to give up its right to self-defense voluntarily. Numerous Western speakers also recalled that Soviet Premier Khrushchev had said modern wars are almost certain to become nuclear conflicts.

"Do you really believe that the Soviet Union intends not to use nuclear weapons in time of war because they are voting for this resolution? Or that the United States and Britain, by voting against this resolution, intend to use nuclear weapons?" Gaetano Martino of Italy asked the committee.

"The Soviet Union has no intention of abiding by this resolution. That is the difference between them and the democratic countries."

Martino had introduced a series of amendments to soften the resolution by making repeated references to the U.N. Charter, which sanctions the use of military force for self-defense. The amendments also would have eliminated the idea of an international agreement to ban the use of nuclear weapons without guarantees. The Italian amendments were defeated.

As he did in a speech in Miami Oct. 27, Rockefeller urged that the United States resume full-scale testing of nuclear weapons.

Rockefeller Assails Kennedy
Stand On Nuclear Test Ban

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, in apparent conflict with President Kennedy, said Tuesday the United States could jeopardize the safety of the free world by agreeing now to a ban on testing of nuclear weapons.

Kennedy's administration has called for resumption of negotiations for a ban—a ban the White House described as an urgent need.

President Kennedy has said any such agreement to end testing would have to be accompanied by safeguards to make sure there was no cheating. He also has ordered preparations for testing in the air should studies of Russia's recent series of tests show that the U.S. military position has been endangered.

Present-day detection systems to police such a ban are not foolproof and would take at least three years to install, the Republican governor said.

That period could be used by the Soviet Union to prepare for new tests "while we stand still for another three years," he said in a statement.

The United States has accused the Soviet Union of secretly preparing for testing during a recently concluded moratorium on such activity.

As he did in a speech in Miami Oct. 27, Rockefeller urged that the United States resume full-scale testing of nuclear weapons.

Action Follows Conference
With Gromyko In Moscow

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Urho Kekkonen dissolved Parliament Tuesday and announced new parliamentary elections in February.

The action came after Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen informed the government that the Soviet Union has asked Finland to provide prompt assurances of continued friendly relations with the Soviet Union or enter into joint defense talks.

Kekkonen said the present international tension demanded decisions that cannot wait until after the regular parliamentary elections due next summer.

He added: "As it is possible to create conditions for fruitful national cooperation only by turning directly to the people of Finland, I ask that the Parliament be dissolved and new elections be held on Feb. 4-5, 1962."

Kekkonen himself is the strongest candidate for presidential elections previously scheduled for next July.

Foreign Minister Karjalainen returned Monday night from Moscow where he had sought more information on a Soviet note of Oct. 30 asking for joint defense consultations.

After he reported to the government, the Finnish Foreign Ministry put out a communique summing up his talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The Soviet note cited an alleged military threat to the Soviet Union from West Germany and accused Finland's Scandinavian neighbors of being involved in the threat.

Tuesday's communique — issued after details were reported to Parliament — quoted Gromyko as saying the Soviet Union had "not the slightest intention of intervening in Finland's domestic affairs."

But he also said the Soviet Union could not fail to take note "that the political situation in Finland had become uncertain" and that "certain political circles had emerged which aimed at attempting to prevent the continuity of the present foreign policy."

Karjalainen replied that there were in fact different political circles in Finland. But he said he was convinced, according to the communique, "that the Finnish people wanted the policy of friendship and confidence in relations with the Soviet Union to be continued."

The Soviet note of Oct. 30 came when President Kekkonen was on a visit to the United States. It was assailed in the West as an attempt at intimidation and it raised fears among the Swedes that they might have to abandon their traditional neutrality.

USS Pocono To Receive Area Painting

THE USS Pocono, Flagship, Amphibious Force, Atlantic, will have a tangible symbol of her namesake, Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, in the large oil painting of Big Pocono Mountain.

The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, an association of 246 resort, motel and recreation facility owners, will present the painting to Capt. J. W. Reed of the USS Pocono, its officers and men as a token of the bond that exists between the people of the Pocono area and the ship.

The painting is by Edna Palmer Engelhardt, and it will hang in the officers' ward room.

A committee headed by John M. Crandall, general manager of Pocono Manor Inn, commissioned Mrs. Engelhardt, well-known landscape artist who has captured the whole of Big Pocono Mountain in brilliant autumnal color surrounded by the pastoral beauty of the Poconos, so familiar to generations of northeastern vacationers.

The formal presentation of the painting will take place aboard the USS Pocono, in Norfolk, Va. headquarters, Amphibious Force, Atlantic, United States Navy, at 5:00 p.m., Friday, Nov. 17.

Immediately following the presentation ceremony the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau will hold a reception and buffet for the officers and men of the ship, who earlier will have the bureau members as their guests during an afternoon tour of the ship.

Representatives of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau who plan to attend the ceremonies are: Mr. and Mrs. William J. Altier, president of the Vacation Bureau; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Schuchard, vice-president of the bureau; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Morgan, representing the Scranton, Pa. ## Touche!

Dear Abby: I noticed a girl in study hall. I liked her looks so I asked her for a date. She accepted. As soon as she got into the car she let me know she was one of those "touch-me-nots." She sat so close to the car door on her side I was afraid she would fall out of the car. I was only checking to make sure her door was locked, but she thought I was trying to put my arm around her, so she hit me in the head with a French Dictionary.

I didn't tell anybody, but she must have confided in a few dozen girl friends because now the story is all over school. How can I get even with her?

Alpern Offered O'Brien's Job

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mayor Joseph M. Barr said yesterday that Justice Anne X. Alpern of State Supreme Court can have Allegheny County Judge Henry X. O'Brien's job if she wants it.

Judge O'Brien, a Republican, defeated Miss Alpern, a Democrat, in the Supreme Court election last Tuesday.

Miss Alpern, serving on the high court by appointment, had been seeking a full, 21-year term. O'Brien will replace her in January.

Barr made the remark to newsmen after someone asked who might be in line for O'Brien's judicial post here.

"After all," the mayor said, "we Democrats take care of our own. If Anne wants O'Brien's job, it'll be here for the asking."

Gov. Lawrence, a political ally of Barr's, will appoint O'Brien's successor. Asked to comment on

Members of Lodge 1717, International Association of Machinists, have been picketing at the plant five days. The machinist and Local 14, Office Employees International Union, have been on strike since Aug. 31.

'Y' Board Maps Health Club Plans

THE board of directors of the Monroe County YMCA last night approved a survey to determine whether a health club including steam rooms and massage tables will be feasible for the local institution.

After a lengthy discussion, directors decided that it will be necessary to recruit at least 60 members at $100 each to make the proposition pay.

They pointed out that the renovation of the room chosen for the new facility will cost $1,508 with equipment to be furnished by the operator of the club.

Annual Drive

Horace G. Walters, membership chairman, said the annual drive for members will open Jan. 16 with report meetings on Jan. 23, Jan. 30 and Feb. 6.

Walters also reported YMCA Week will be Jan. 21 to 28. He is chairman of the observance with Dr. Ray Barnard and John C. Haswell as members of the committee.

Dr. P. K. Emmons was elected to the board to serve the term of Mrs. Jean Farry, who resigned.

Jesse Pierson, physical chairman, reported East Stroudsburg State College students in charge of the program are working well and that interest in the program is increasing.

He recommended hiring part-time instructors from local high school faculties, but no action was taken. Pierson said he was also interested in having Stroud Union High School use the Y pool.

John Wilson, general secretary, gave the activities report and the group voted to purchase a nylon covered cage for golf driving practice.

Banks To Distribute Yule Club Checks

MONROE County banks will distribute $427,000 later this week when it submits checks to some 4,300 Christmas Club members.

The figures are about par for last year. However, it is believed that across the Eastern coast, both figures are down about 5 per cent.

A survey by the Daily Record yesterday disclosed that three banks—the Monroe Security Bank & Trust Co., First Stroudsburg National Bank and the East Stroudsburg National Bank—will mail out the checks on Friday, Nov. 17. They will be payable on Nov. 20.

The only other bank in the county, Northeastern Pennsylvania National Bank & Trust Co., did not have figures available. The transactions are handled and submitted by the bank headquarters in Scranton. Northeastern has a bank branch in Mount Pocono.

Breakdown

A breakdown of the banks in the survey showed:
Monroe Security—$180,000 with 1,950 club members.
East Stroudsburg National—$122,000 with 1,100 members.
First Stroudsburg National—$115,000 with 1,300 club members.

On the average, each member will receive about $38.

Up Slightly

Monroe Security reported that the membership is up slightly while the total amount deposited is about the same as last year.

East Stroudsburg National is down about 2 per cent in total membership and amount deposited. This is in comparison to the average on the Eastern seaboard of a drop of 5 per cent.

The First Stroudsburg National Bank disclosed an increase in both departments. Last year it registered about 1,215 members and had a total amount payable of $110,000.

Sen. Scott Sees Governor Chances Good

STATE SEN. William Z. Scott of Lansford, is convinced recent elections in Pennsylvania and New Jersey have enhanced his chances for favorable consideration as the Republican nominee for governor next year.

"This election laid down the criteria for the successful candidate for governor next year," Scott said. "He must be young, vigorous, attractive and independent."

Scott, 45, feels he meets these essentials and adds he is "filled with hope and confidence."

Scott says hisism and controlled primaries "are out the window" and cites Dauphin County where the Democrats elected a judge for the first time in 116 years.

The Republican candidate was 71-year-old John McI. Smith, hand-picked by 84-year-old Sen. M. Harvey Taylor. Democrat Lee F. Swope, 46, defeated him while the rest of the Republican ticket rolled up the traditional party majority.

Taylor, former Republican state chairman, has been undisputed leader of Dauphin County for many years and this was the first time his leadership had been successfully challenged at the county level.

Miss Downey Only Female In ESSC Play

MISS NUALA Downey, a student from New Zealand enrolled at the East Stroudsburg State College this year, is the only woman in the college's first play of the season. The play, John Patrick's comedy-drama, "The Hasty Heart," has eight male roles and one female. The men are soldiers in a British field hospital somewhere in Southeast Asia.

Sister Margaret, the English nurse in the hospital, is portrayed by Nuala Downey. "In England, and of course in New Zealand, and I imagine in all British countries, nurses are called 'sisters,' she explains. "And, for some reason this is hard for Americans to understand."

"Why did I get this part? Well... I tried out for it, you know. I love acting; I was in all my high school plays and some day I hope to do a bit of work in repertory. My accent? Possibly it could have had something to do with it!"

"The Hasty Heart" is directed by Mr. Joseph J. Brennan of the speech dept. It will be given Dec. 7-9 in the college auditorium.

The Seat Belt Story

A local physician, who has recently ordered seat safety belts installed in his car, has presented us with a full page article from the Medical Tribune which gives the present status of seat belt legislation as well as a dissertation on the reasons why medical men should do all in their power to advocate them.

The article points out that the seat belts can't prevent accidents, but that they can reduce the toll of death and severe injury resulting from them. Most people who are concerned with highway safety realize that, in an accident, ejection of the driver and passengers effects greater injury than the actual impact.

Several of the states have already instigated legislation for the compulsory installation of the safety devices, and automobile manufacturers have agreed to go along in making the mechanical adaptations necessary to their products.

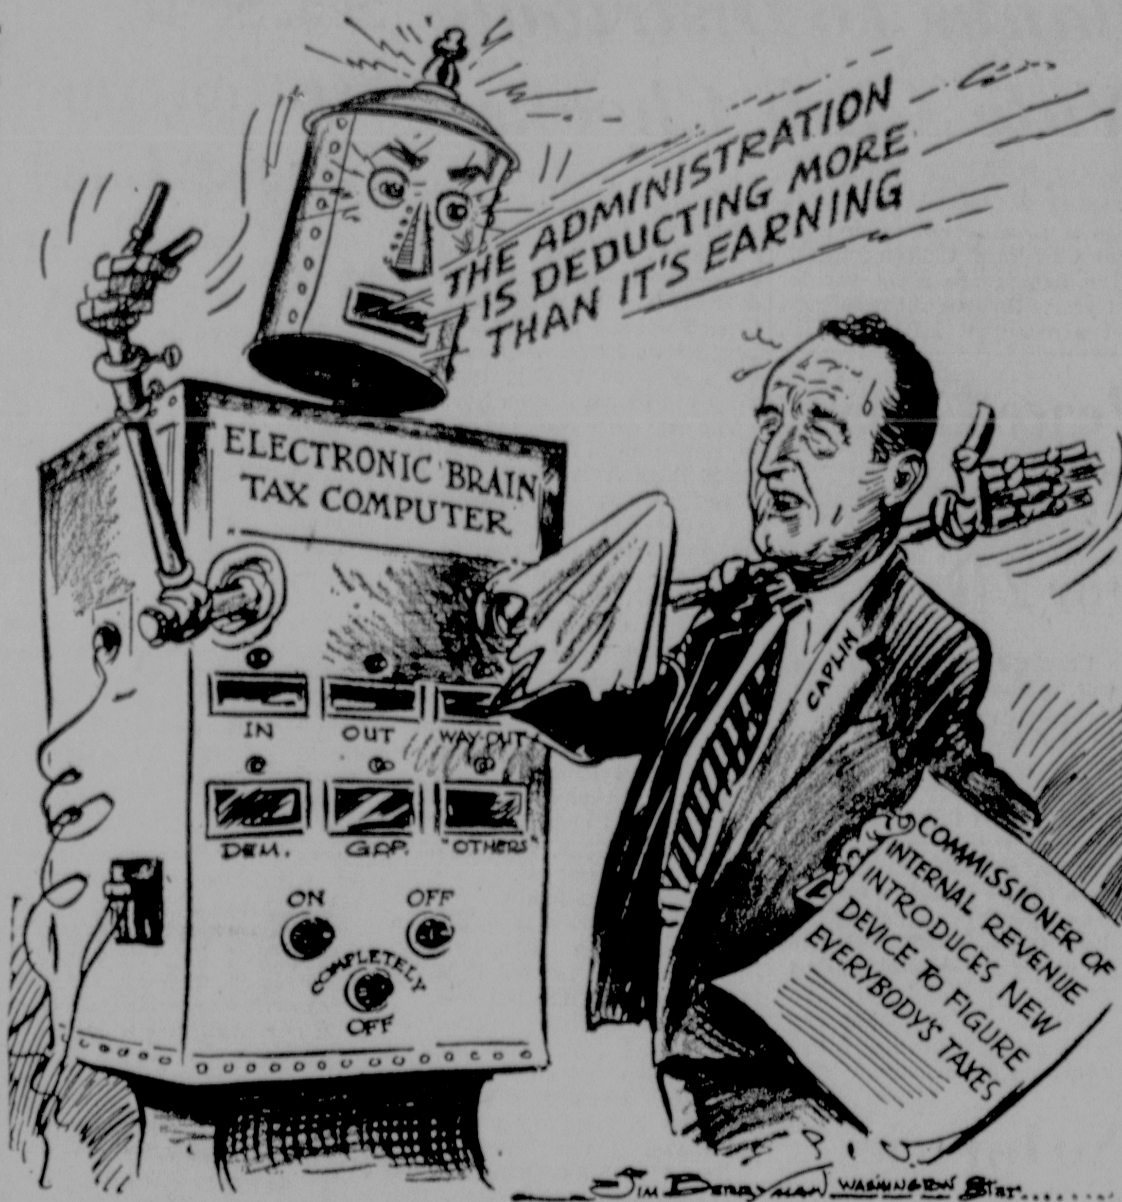

The legislative processes are long and tedious, however, and the medical profession is exerting its influence on the individual drivers and car owners to install the safety belts themselves as a protective measure.

According to a survey made by the doctors, safety belts are the most effective single available device for reducing the severity of crash trauma. The belts were first tested by military aviators when it was found that injury in plane crashes might be minimized if the pilots were restrained from impact with the interior cockpit structure during the "second collision" inside the airplane. Today, safety belts are standard equipment in all planes.

It is important to remember that seat belts are not a panacea. They do not prevent accidents. But the severity of injury to belt users in highway accidents was proven to be a great deal less than those who did not wear them. The chief benefit derive from seat belts come from eliminating the risk of ejection from the car, especially prevalent in rollovers. In this type of accident, seat belts cut the total "major-fatal" grade accidents in half.

One day there will undoubtedly be legislation requiring automobile manufacturers to make safety belts compulsory. Until that time, their use is dependent upon the wisdom and foresight of the individual.

The Legal Handout

Man in our day has assumed his social responsibility with a commendable spirit. At the same time, though, he has learned that human beings can be roughly divided into two classes: the pushers and the leaners.

Part of the cost of doing business is the taxes we pay, and part of those taxes is used to help people in financial trouble in times of economic change. Unemployment relief, one of the most important forms of this help, is a program conceived in good faith and generally well administered. Yet it invites an economic evil that is growing in many communities.

One of the most helpful persons in the small town used to be the "handy man" who could repair a sidewalk, paint a porch, mend a fence, or take on a multitude of other odd jobs. He worked by the hour, day or week, unhampered by the complications of the law that now regulates temporary employment. Maybe the "handy man" is still around, but he is no longer available for spring or autumn jobs when the screens need attention or the garden is due for a cleanup. He is collecting unemployment insurance, and he can't take the risk of making a few dollars and losing the government handout. In this case, certainly, unemployment insurance increases unemployment by deferring initiative.

Paternalism has a strange influence on civic logic, and the notion that we can dump all of our welfare obligations on the community is gaining ground every time a legislative body takes another tax bite for the purposes of the public weal. At the same time, this curious logic influences the opinion of public officials who are the purveyors of the handout.

No businessman begrudges the dollar given to the needy but this is not the issue. There is grave reason to believe that our society is supporting a fair percentage of drones and sharpies who like the flavor of tax butter on the bread earned by someone else's sweat.

Youth Vs. Age

All over the world, people are living longer and youth is pushing harder. The younger people want their place in the sun and the older people do not want to be relegated to porch-sitting. In fact, for most of our population, there are no porches; there are no rockers; in chain stores, there are no cracker barrels; and in the big cities, even the barber shops have been taken by young and pugnacious ladies who hold one's hand and with whom one more easily converses than with the barber.

The very young talk about their rights. No one takes them to the woodshed to be spanked. Who has a woodshed? And what parent knows how to spank so that it hurts him more than it hurts the boy?

One of the major rights of the very young, until they get bored with it, is to watch television. Perhaps one reason that our children do not know how to spell, or read, or write is because they watch television while they do their home-work and as everybody is passed to prevent him from becoming a juvenile delinquent, it is not essential to know too much to get on.

Joseph C. Brochek of San Diego has written to me learnedly on the wickedness of brats. He apparently knows the youngsters well, having suffered much at their hands. He says:

"Your insipid thought that parents could control what they want shown by throwing a coin in the slot is suggestive of the complete lack of control by parents over even the most trivial actions of their offspring. Did your old man ever have to lock himself in the bathroom so the kids would not muddle in on his can of beer?

"Our parents' popular after-supper sports being a game of 66 (cards), did that divert me from home work, violin practice, or other tedious obligations for my parents' feeding and clothing me? And as for the little darlings being by pay viewing deprived from the older folks' objective in program selection, they would, in our opinion, merely say: 'Move over dad, I can't see from here!'

"Or, should mom or dad have the temerity to demand that they remove themselves from the premises, the kids probably, their pockets being well-lined with 'allowance,' make up TV parties and gang up somewhere to collectively feed the 'Tollies' as they now do the Juke Boxes.

"And we, who prefer to recall the days of our youth by viewing Westerns and similar 'He-man shows' instead (of) the maudlin moans, groans and whining of so-called singers, could sit around and comfort ourselves with knitting."

Well said, of course. But the solution is a television in every room. The girls no longer need to watch mother cook. They can get the pre-fabricated stuff which is so well-packaged that it makes the refrigerator look like the decorations on a Christmas tree.

Nobody needs to know how to make a cake; she can buy a mix. And to tell the truth, if one has no memory of what grandmother's cakes were like, the mix actually tastes better than sweetie's efforts which somehow come out wrong so often.

Brother Brochek is too optimistic about what the youngsters would do if they were not permitted to watch murders at home. The kids would not spend their allowances on television parties, figuring that the stuff is OK if free but is not to be paid for.

They might go back to the good old days of the movies where one could sit in Stygian darkness in palatial surroundings and neck to one's heart's content without parental supervision. Is necking worse than murder?

The moral of my tale is really what Brochek is writing about. Parents should control children until the children can control themselves, which may be never in such a world as ours. Nowadays everybody looks to Russia for perfection in education, but the Russians have their problems, too.

Their kids, having achieved international equality by throwing bombs, are becoming hooligans which makes more sense than joining the Komso-mol whence comes all perdition.

An ardent Komso-mol youth gains status by spying on his parents and discovering that they still retain some bourgeois habits, although that is not as forbidden in Khrushchev's time as it was in Stalin's because Khrushchev is by nature a bourgeois, being a pragmatist rather than an idealist.

The kids know what that means.

The Pennsylvania Story

Congressional Reshuffling

Harrisburg — Much of the wind has gone out of Pennsylvania's congressional reshuffling sails insofar as Democrats of the Keystone State are concerned.

Around Capitol Hill now it is generally regarded that Democratic bargainers at the congressional cut-up table will be forced to relent on their heretofore adamant "nyet" (Russian "no") compromise stand on the mandated realignment of Pennsylvania's 30 congressional districts — realignment that is, by reduction of the number of such districts from 30 to 27.

Several factors have brought this "de-winding" process on the part of Democratic leaders who heretofore had almost blindly and loftily insisted that in any redistricting to be done, Philadelphia should retain its six congressional districts as at present, all of which needless to say currently are in Democratic hands.

Pennsylvania Republicans on the other hand have opposed this stand, contending that at least one Philadelphia district should go, thus reducing the Quaker City Washington delegation from six to five.

This then has been the impasse that has gripped the situation since the 1960 Census count showed Pennsylvania failing to keep pace population-wise—thus losing three seats.

Pennsylvania Democrats — basically the notorious Philadelphia city organization headed by so-called "kingmaker" William J. Green—have been pretty staunch in their pooh-poohing of any GOP plans that envision plucking a Philadelphia district.

Largely this has been based on the theory that with their collective strength they could hold out till the pond freezes over.

The important point is that if the thing isn't settled by February 10, then all 27 Pennsylvania Congressmen would be elected "at large" next year rather than by and in their exclusive districts.

Democrats have been holding to the theme largely that an "at large" congressional balloting next year wouldn't be so bad for their side after all. In other words, if they carried the state they could carry most of the districts!

After last week and the Democratic defeat at the polls in the statewide Supreme Court contest, they're not so sure. There is considerable quaking of the Democratic aspen leaf.

Unquestionably considerable animosity has been built up against the arrogant Philadelphia Green machine in the outlying areas of the Quaker City, which under the Green plan would be included in the congressional redistricting to provide the "population spread" for retention of the six Philadelphia districts.

This could raise hell with Philadelphia Democratic plans — and also statewide Demo plans — for next year just as it did last week.

Faced with these somewhat demoralizing factors, chances are believed good around Capitol Hill that Pennsylvania donkey riders — notwithstanding their impressive 155,000-plus registration lead (which did them little good last week) — will be a little more mellow and considerably less insistent when redistricting talks are resumed once again between Democratic and Republican leaders.

The salient fact is that things aren't as rosy for Democratic leaders as they were prior to last week. It should change a lot of things—one of the most critical of which could be their outlook on the congressional redistricting stalemate.

It'll take a lot of puffs to get the wind back into their former congressional reshuffling sails!

Incidentally, one of the hardest workers for the Democrats in the last election was Beanie Stem, the East Stroudsburg who can be seen in Stroudsburg more often than in his home ball-wick.

Stem worked around the clock to put into offices, individuals he was dedicated too. While the enthusiastic Demo didn't see all of his candidates elected, those who did make the grade can be thankful Stem Beanie gave that ex little extra effort to put them over in the victory column.

Probably the most popular vote-getter in the last General Election was Warren Loney. In all our travels rarely a word of condemnation was said against the Monroe's treasurer-elect. This, to say the least is unusual in the quietest political fight.

By the Democrat and Republican vote he collected, Warren assured the Democrats that they have a star hovering over their party. And by the favorable word of the public (verbally, that is) Loney will be around the political scene for a long, long time.

One of those new movie stars with extraordinary measurements is so candid and unpredictable that her studio has assigned two press agents to do her talking for her. An enterprising reporter, however, cornered her when the press agents were out to lunch and came back with an interview that was a sizzler. The star confessed, for instance, that she liked to "wear dresses so tight that the men can't breathe."

She also suggested a sure-fire way to keep children from biting their fingernails. "Other mothers should do what I did," she proposed cheerfully. "I just knocked my little boy's teeth out!"

Asked why she was seen so frequently with a wealthy and publicity-mad octogenarian, she explained, "He possesses that rarest of masculine virtues—about $15 million."

Dick Everitt, graduate of Stroud Union High, was back in town for a holiday. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Everitt, Stroudsburg, Dick is a member of Uncle Sam's Coast Guard.

Saturday's 73-0 pasting of Stroud Union by Northampton must have brought back memories of the Konkrete Kids to Dick. It wasn't too long ago, Everitt took a kickoff and raced 80-plus yards for a touchdown of the even-then invincible proteges of Al Erdosy.

It memory serves me correctly, Dick's long TD scamper was the only score for the locals as Northampton ran up a 39-6 triumph. Despite all the scores of the "Konkrete Kids," Dick's all-the-way shot was by far the best run of the afternoon.

Jerry Snyder, East Stroudsburg State College graduate, says he saw the handwriting on the wall in the Republican's vote gain in the last General Election.

"The wheels of fortune were bound to favor the GOP," Snyder said. "After all the tremendous strides the Democrats made at the polls in the last three years had to run out of gas," he evaluated.

Snyder, former county GOP chairman, predicts a Republican victory nationally and statewide the next time John Q. goes to the polls.

Probably the most popular vote-getter in the last General Election was Warren Loney. In all our travels rarely a word of condemnation was said against the Monroe's treasurer-elect. This, to say the least is unusual in the quietest political fight.

By the Democrat and Republican vote he collected, Warren assured the Democrats that they have a star hovering over their party. And by the favorable word of the public (verbally, that is) Loney will be around the political scene for a long, long time.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — President Kennedy's highly regarded "Alliance for Progress" program for Latin America is off to a whirlwind start.

U.S. government loans, the financial backbone of the program, are flowing to members of the Alliance at the unprecedented rate of $100 million a month.

As of November 1, U.S. government lending agencies made eighty-six loans totaling more than $700 million to sixteen of the Alliance's nineteen members since the President first proposed the program last April.

This record U.S. leading activity is considerably above the billion dollar a year goal set by Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon at the Inter-American Economic Conference in Punta del Este, Uruguay, last August when the Alliance was officially organized.

However, despite this whirlwind beginning, the U.S. has hardly scratched the surface of the bottomless economic needs of these undeveloped Latin American nations.

For instance, since the Punta del Este meeting more than $3.5 billion in applications for emergency aid have poured into Washington under Dillon's pledge of rapid assistance. These requests are expected to reach $5 billion by the end of the year.

Until this week, Richard N. Goodwin, President Kennedy's controversial special assistant for Latin American Affairs, ran the program from the White House. In addition to his many other duties, he expedited these loans by working through two loosely knit committees composed of State and Treasury officials. This procedure got the program off to a flying start but gave it little long-range direction.

The President, in order to give the program this appointed Latin American Area Administrator of the Agency for International Development.

He told Moscow, a native

'Alliance For Progress' Loans Now Going Out

Puerto Rican and U.S. Ambassador to Venezuela, not to spare any effort or money to make the program work, stating:

"No long range program is more important to U.S. foreign policy than the Alliance for Progress. On its rapid and successful implementation depends, to a large extent, the future of freedom in this hemisphere."

Slicing The Pie—Brazil, Mexico, and Venezuela, all pushing huge industrialization programs, received the lions share of the loans during the initial phases of the Alliance program.

According to an unpublished State Department report, these three countries received a total of $513,369,000—or nearly two-thirds of the amount loaned by the U.S. during the first seven months.

Brazil received $327 million to help develop a system of highways and to build a huge cement plant to produce materials for the project. This Alliance loan is in addition to $500 million furnished that country last May by U.S. private banks and government agencies.

Mexico was given $99,898,000 to finance a series of long range projects, including a $10 million irrigation development. Venezuela, which just broke its diplomatic with Cuba, received $86,471,000.

Of the Alliance members, only Guatemala and Honduras have received no loans. This situation is expected to change with Moscow taking over the program. Aides say he will have a more friendly attitude toward these two strongly pro-U.S. governments than did the 29-year-old Goodwin. At present, neither Cuba or the Dominican Republic are eligible for U.S. aid under the program.

Here is a country-by-country breakdown of loans granted by the U.S. during the first seven months of the Alliance program:

Brazil $327,000,000; Mexico 99,898,000; Venezuela 86,471,000; Argentina 26,432,000; Peru 26,841,000; Colombia 23,460,000; El Salvador 17,158,000; Costa Rica 16,763,000; Paraguay 13,618,000; Panama 10,151,000; Nicaragua 9,272,000; Ecuador 8,125,000; Chile 8,494,000; Bolivia 6,235,000; Uruguay 2,274,000; Guatemala none; Haiti 250,000; Honduras none.

In addition to these loans, the U.S. has given $5 million to the newly created Central American Bank under the program. Another $100 million in loans will be given final approval before the end of November.

The Alliance is designed to raise Latin-American living standards and promote democratic stability. The U.S. has committed itself to provide more than $10 billion dollars for Alliance projects over a period of 10 years. Recipient nations are to match this aid.

Looking Forward—Major General Edwin Walker, who resigned his Army commission this month to speak out against Communism, is going to testify before the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Subcommittee despite all the reports to the contrary. That's the private report that Senator John Stennis, D. Miss., chairman, is passing on to other committee members.

In notifying members this week that his hearings on the Defense Department's censorship of military officers' speeches will be delayed until Dec. 11, Senator Stennis revealed that Walker will be called to testify either in December or January.

According to Senator Stennis, Walker has asked for a chance to publicly answer McNamara's testimony to the subcommittee on why he ordered the General removed as commander of the Army's 24th Division in Germany.

President Kennedy has offered to name Richard Goodwin, his 29-year-old White House Assistant, to an Ambassadorship post he wants in South America. Goodwin's friends say he would like to go to Argentina.

From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton

December 4, the United Nations will issue a set of three stamps honoring the United Nations Children's Fund on its 15th anniversary. The denominations will be three, four and thirteen cents.

The design, by Minoru Hisano of Tokyo, Japan, consists of a mother bird feeding its young and the UNICEF seal. The letters UNICEF appearing under the seal depicting a Mother and child at the lower left hand corner of the stamp symbolize the United Nations Children's Fund.

In addition UNICEF stands for the improvement of child welfare by providing medicines, materials and training facilities in over one hundred countries.

In most of the world, children face overwhelming odds against growing up strong and well, and the chances of even survival are not encouraging. From birth these children face a future beset by disease, ignorance and hunger.

But now, in a rising tide of concern, more than 100 governments are using international aid to protect their children from these hazards. Each assisted government adds an average of two and a half dollars in money or manpower to every UNICEF

The House Of The Week

Tri-Level Living In Ranch-Type Silhouette

By Jules Loh

The long, low silhouette, a hallmark of suburban America, is not the property solely of the one-story ranch type house.

For those who like the popular wide look, but are equally insistent on a clearly zoned floor plan—with the bedrooms upstairs, the living area on the first floor and the play area below—House of the Week B-92 provides an attractive answer.

It is a front-to-back split level, designed by architect Alfred H. Ryder. Its dimensions are a modest 38 feet deep by 59 feet 8 inches wide, including the double garage which accounts for 21 feet 8 inches of the width. The house contains three bedrooms and 2½ baths in 1,330 square feet on the upper levels and 670 square feet on the lower level.

The house would be ideal for a sloping lot, but architect Ryder says it could easily be built on level ground with foundation excavation taking care of the slope.

The 25 feet 10 inches by 13 feet living room in this house is a real luxury, and it's given all the more eye-appeal by a handsome fireplace wall at one end and an open gallery overlooking it from the sleeping level five steps above.

Both the living-area bathrooms are on the sleeping level; one a full-sized family bath and the other a bath with a stall shower adjoining the master bedroom.

The family bathroom is well located so that it never is necessary for any bedroom occupants to cross the gallery—and note the extra large linen closet adjoining the main bath and convenient to both family bedrooms.

Additional Details

The lower level of this house actually is 670 square feet of "bonus" space; if the home were ranch style, as its outward appearance suggests, this area wouldn't exist.

With direct access outdoors, the lower level would make an excellent professional office. It also would solve the problem of a number of House of the Week readers who have asked for a plan which would accommodate a parent or relative who is as much disinclined to impinge on your privacy as you are averse to allowing him to live alone.

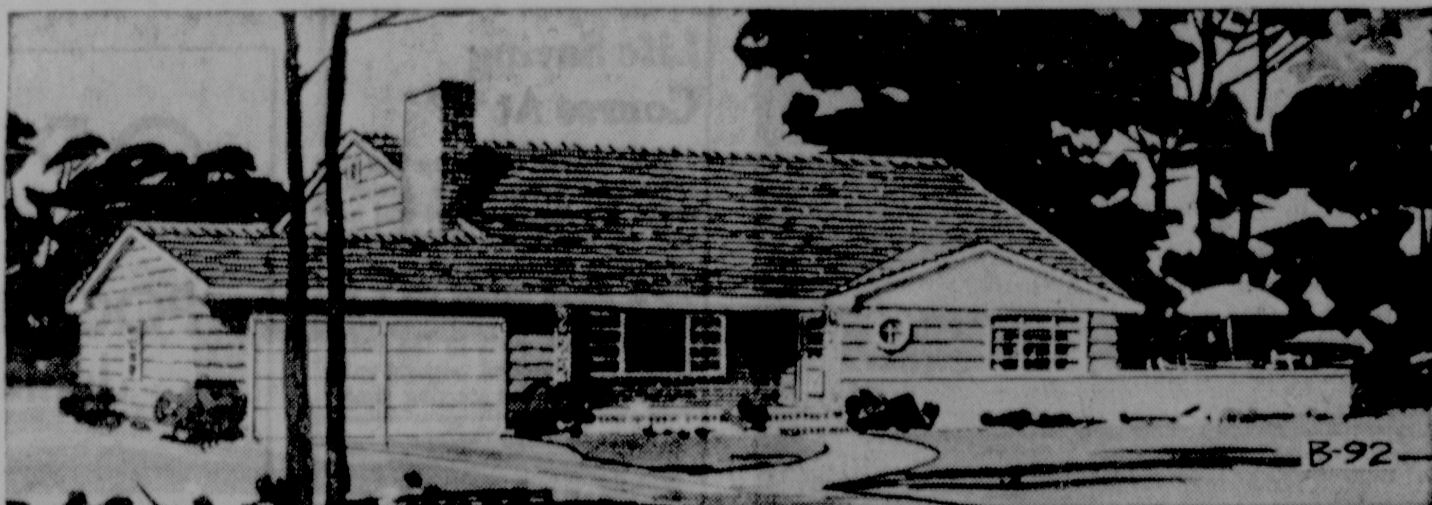

The kitchen-dining area, with both rooms opening to the dining terrace, is a well ordered arrangement for everyday living.

The 11 feet by 8 feet 8 inch kitchen (which has enough room for a breakfast nook) has 17 linear feet of hanging cabinets and 13 linear feet of counter cabinets—a total of 30 feet of cabinet space, nearly the width of the house itself. It also is equipped with a wall oven, dishwasher and counter-top range.

The closet space throughout this house is worth a second look. The master bedroom has two roomy closets, and the closets in the other two bedrooms also are extra large. The coat closet at the front entrance likewise is large enough to accommodate your own family's paraphernalia with extra room for guests' coats.

The front porch of this house shouldn't be overlooked as a third outdoor living area. An equally important function is that it provides a sheltered entrance to the house. You can go from the garage to the front door without being exposed to rain or snow.

Looking at this house from the exterior, it's hard to believe the house proper is a perfect square, 38 feet by 38 feet. The garage on one side and an attractive wall on the other to add to the privacy of the dining terrace, give it the long, low look of suburbia.

SUBURBAN SILHOUETTE: While it has the popular long, low look, this house actually is a front-to-back split with three levels. It contains three bedrooms, two and one-half baths in 1,330 square feet of living area on the two upper levels and 670 square feet on the lower level.

B-92 Statistics

A three-bedroom front-to-back split with three levels, 2½ baths, separate dining room, playroom and utility fourth bedroom.

Dimensions are 38 feet deep by 59 feet 8 inches wide, including double garage which accounts for 21 feet 8 inches of width. Area is 1,330 square feet on two upper levels and 670 square feet on lower level.

New Varnishes

PLANNING to refinish a table top or bar? Then consider using one of the relatively new varnishes now on the market, either an epoxy or a polyurethane varnish. These two synthetic resins form an especially tough film highly resistant to abrasion and most chemicals which are likely to come into contact with them. Like the more familiar varnishes, these newcomers should not be stirred before use and should be flowed on with a minimum of brushing. These two precautions will minimize the formation of bubbles.

Seal First

BOTH PARTICLE board and hardboard can be painted easily and attractively if the right procedure is followed. The important thing is to seal the surface so that the topcoat will be evenly absorbed. Recommended sealers are latex paint, primer sealer, shellac or enamel undercoat. After the prime coat has dried, sand it lightly and follow with the paint or enamel you want in the color of your choice.

Importance Of Light

WHEN selecting colors for your home, always take into consideration the type of lighting. Fluorescent lights have a tendency to accentuate the blue tone of some colors; incandescent, on the other hand, brings out yellow tones. For example, under fluorescent light, red takes on a violet appearance, while under incandescent light, it will seem more yellow.

FLOOR PLANS: Characteristic of this house are its clearly defined divisions — sleeping area, living area and informal area. The house contains 1,330 square feet on the two upper levels and 670 square feet on the lower level. Over-all dimensions are 38 eight feet deep by 59 feet, eight wide including the double garage.

Paint It Yourself

Christmas Window Mural

By Donald R. Braun

THIS Christmas Mural measuring four feet high by six feet long is a paint-it-yourself project. By tracing the full size painting guide on Homasote or other waterproof panelboard, anyone can make this colorful Christmas scene for less than $5.00. Since the pattern is full size and shows exactly where and when each color is used, "everyone makes like a pro." When placed in a picture window, on the front of your house, or on the lawn, it makes a beautiful Christmas Greeting.

Another interesting way of using this attractive mural is by painting it with water colors. The picture can then be fastened to a light frame, as directions on pattern suggests. The mural is then sprayed with Three-in-one oil which makes it quite translucent and waterproof. When a bright light is placed behind the mural the illumination gives the effect of a stained glass window.

Send $1 in check or money order for Christmas Window Mural Pattern No. 942A to The Daily Record, P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York. Send 35 cents additional for new catalog illustrating over 300 other build-it-yourself projects.

An Upcoming Trend In The Housing Industry

JOHN Q. Citizen may soon be able to trade in his old house for a new one almost as easily as he now swaps his old car for a newer model.

This is the upcoming trend in the housing industry, according to a nationwide survey conducted recently among builders and realtors by the Terminix Division of E. L. Bruce Co., Memphis, Tenn.

The termite control organization unearthed the facts and figures while trying to ascertain how many realtors and builders have houses termite-inspected before taking them in trade or when handling real estate transfers.

Of the 144 persons interviewed in 12 states and 29 cities, 39 per cent said their firms now have some type of home trade-in plan. 86 per cent of those who expressed an opinion think trade-ins will definitely increase. Only a scant five per cent saw a possible decrease. Nine per cent foresaw no change at all.

Said one Cincinnati realtor: "Trade-ins will increase simply because the public wants it."

Other echoed his sentiments. "The public is trade-in conscious," declared the Bahmman Company of Harrington, Texas.

An Indianapolis realtor, the Margaret Evans Co., cited savings on taxes, and the better prices trade-ins generate as reasons for the upturn.

Acme Building Materials Company, Indianapolis builders, said home trade-ins should parallel auto-type financing if money is made available.

"Trade-ins will have to increase if builders and realtors expect to reap full benefits and at the same time provide housing for families who wish to improve their standards without the burden of owning two homes," said Buz Carl, successful Kendall, Fla., builder and realtor.

Carl claims success with trade-ins (45 per cent of his business is in this type of deal) because: (1) he's selective; (2) he persuades prospects to be realistic about the value of their property; (3) he sees that owners aren't left holding two pieces of property; (4) he completes trades in the shortest possible time, and (5) he finds prospects with eight or more years ownership have the equity to make trading practical.

"This is a relatively new idea which has not, as yet, had enough exposure," summarized Brennan-Douthitt Realtors of Haddonfield, New Jersey.

A few realtors, such as Walter S. Veon of Veon and McCord, Indianapolis, took the opposing view.

"As long as the market is glutted with homes for sale, it isn't feasible to promote trade-ins," he said.

Other respondents cited better financing, the desire for large and more expensive homes, the availability of houses, larger families, more second-home purchases, increased publicity, and the need to meet competition as reasons for the burgeoning trade-in program.

A slight majority—51 per cent to 49 per cent—favor nationwide trading enabling an owner to trade in a home in one city and buy in another and vice versa.

Most think such a plan would stimulate trade and make the market more fluid. Others feel it would involve too many administrative headaches and too much speculation.

"I don't believe it's workable because each broker has a different opinion of how conservative to be," said Jules Saxe, San Francisco realtor. "I wouldn't accept the opinion of a broker I don't know as to cashout price."

Edward H. Miller, sales manager of Gaylor Brooks and Company, Baltimore, took the opposite view.

"A large per cent of our prospective home buyers have a house to sell before purchasing something new, he said. "This I believe is a paramount problem among all real estate brokers. Certainly a nationwide home trade-in plan would help alleviate a portion of this problem."

The survey further revealed that 19 per cent of the respondents now have a plan which enables owners to swap in one city and buy in another. Eighty-one per cent of those who answered the question do not make such provisions, however.

Thirty-six per cent of the trade-ins involve new homes only, while 64 per cent also include homes sold on commission. Most of the respondents didn't indicate whether their trade-ins involved new or old homes.

Just Between Us —

It's amazing how much I can enjoy the company of teachers — now that neither me nor mine are dependent on their good offices. Although I'll have to admit that sharing the company of assorted English teachers last night for several hours did give me pause when I tried to decide whether "neither me nor mine" should be followed by "is" or "are."

Actually teachers as a rule have to have a big reservoir of humor or they'd have pumped it dry years ago. And its sort of humor I enjoy. I was with their speaker, Robert Hogan, all the way when he was describing the proposed syllabus for the Summer Institutes founded on the assumptions:

That there is (are) more than one acceptable grammar; that teachers can teach composition better if they can write; and that teachers can teach literature with more understanding if they've read a lot of it.

But if we admit that teachers are human, even English teachers, we should also admit that newspapermen are, too. And nothing could be more human than Joe Cusack's reaction to the testimonial dinner given in his honor by his former associates on the Union Gazette over the weekend.

Which centered around how his daughters enjoyed their first rally grown-up function, including the taxi ride from Black Bear Inn to Port Jervis, after the dinner itself. The younger was a little wary of her first experience without parents along, but was mightily reassured when halfway home the taxi radio brought the message from headquarters: "Drive carefully; you've got the Cusack children in that taxi."

One of these days I'd like to do a whole page on the various social activities of all of our staff; preferably on the day before I leave for a good long vacation, when, if ever, it wouldn't matter if it should turn out to be permanent.

County English Teachers Welcomed To Area Assn.; Summer Institutes Listed

Monroe County Teachers of English voted in favor of joining with the Lehigh-Northampton Assn. of Teachers of English at the meeting held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel last night, and the association voted in favor of accepting them and changing the name to Tri County Assn.

The action will become final if there is a favorable vote at the next meeting of the association.

Dr. Rebecca Stewart, president of the Pennsylvania Council of English Teachers, Bethlehem, was among the guests at the meeting at which Mrs. Parke Kunkle, of Stroud Union High School, president of the association, presided.

Robert Hogan, associate director of the Commission on English established by the College Entrance Examination Board, currently on leave from the University of California at Berkeley, was the chief speaker.

English teachers working together on new available ways of doing things can do more than refuting criticism or commiserating with each other, Hogan said in hailing the association itself.

His main theme was the new Summer Institutes for English teachers, set up after a pilot project held last Summer at Ann Arbor, Mich. Sixty university authorities in the fields of literature, language and composition studied the current problems in teaching English. Their findings will be incorporated in the 20 Summer Institutes of approximately 45 students each at universities throughout the country, he said.

For local teachers, there will be institutes at the University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh and Rutgers University, with each university setting up its own geographical limits so that in addition the summer institutes there can be follow-up work on how the curricula arrived at in the seminars function in actual practice.

A report on their round table on Articulation was given by Jacob Horst, Allentown, and a pre-convention orientation on the national convention to be held in Philadelphia over Thanksgiving was led by Michael Zuk, Bethlehem.

Once upon a time the phrase "pack up your troubles in your old kit bag" was just the first line to a song. Today it is more than that . . . it is something at least one doll manufacturer is doing so that little Mothers may have a few of the heartaches that their own Mothers know. Or maybe that isn't the reason exactly. Maybe the REAL reason is to give Little Mothers a boon companion during such inconveniences as measles, chickenpox, and colds. Whichever the case, Madame Alexander has created Marybel . . . a little lady who is charming to own, to cuddle, and to cherish, but comes packed in a tidy suitcase complete with troubles galore, ranging from the normal childhood diseases to such major catastrophes as broken leg and arm bones. And all this costs only 12.98.

In Marybel's box are scores of red measles to be pasted upon her pretty face whenever her young Mother decides measles are in order, or whenever Mama herself comes down with them and needs an understanding fellow-convalescent. If measles are not drastic enough, Madame Alexander has supplied her doll with seeds of bright yellow chicken pox that are truly ghastly to behold. There are also dark glasses for Marybel to wear during those days the doctor considers light harmful to fevered eyes. Should Marybel be a reckless little girl and fall from bike or tree, or while climbing the garden gate, there is a plastic cast to slip over her leg or arm. There are plastic crutches too. And in the event Marybel's Mommie contrives for her an illness not otherwise considered by Madame Alexander, there are adhesive tapes and bandages by the roll which Mommie can apply to the injured extremities.

Having reared three children, I personally favor dolls with no complications . . . but I can well understand that many a doll-loving child would adore Marybel with her pre-packed headaches. Laying her troubles aside, she is a charming toy, and would undoubtedly delight a youngster who has inclinations toward nursing. There is no doubt that Marybel will fill a very definite place in the hearts of many a youngster, and if you have a tender-hearted little girl on your gift list who loves being a super-motherly Mother, by all means consider this particular doll.

I have never seen a more charming array of dolls than we have right now in our Wyckoff store, many of them arranged on open shelves that represent rooms in a giant doll house. Studying them, I was reminded by some of them of a news item that reported a sale in California of a collection of antiques. Guess what the antiques included!—an original Shirley Temple doll. Antique indeed . . . Shirley is still a favorite with little girls, but in our current collection we see her not as a charming child, but in costume for such roles as Little Red Riding Hood and Cinderella.

Then, of course, we have the beloved baby doll, and some of them have the wrinkled, wizened faces of the newborn—not pretty, but touching a chord of tenderness in the heart of any woman however tiny and young or large and old. Among these is Kitten, whose body is as soft and relaxed as a real baby's, and who can put her toe in her mouth if her young Mommie is inclined to place her in this position. We've also a little girl doll named TIMMIE, believe it or not, and she's a real cutie-pie in a white pique ensemble.

One of the Madame Alexander dolls is a real glamour girl who looks as French as the Rue de la Paix. She is tall, curvaceous, with a wealth of brunette hair pertly clipped and curled, pierced ears with gold earrings, and a gold coin necklace that dangles from beneath the turtle neck of a sleekly-fitted red sweater worn above a tartan plaid skirt. Even Dad would give Mimi the eye, I dare say, and gasp, "Wotta doll!" At 18.98 she certainly is!

But the dolls I love best, are Effenbee's Susie Sunshine, in all sizes and versions. Susie is precious, with a full face dotted with just a few freckles; a pointed chin, and a head that tilts in any position while her eyes roll impishly. She comes priced from 10.98 to 13.98, and in apparel ranging from a simple floral chintz to a complete turquoise ensemble with simulated white fur trim.

See them all . . . love them all . . . but buy at least one doll this year. Give your child a LOVING gift this Christmas . . . without love what's a holiday? What's any day, for that matter!

The Daily Investor

Short-Term Trading

By William A. Doyle

Q. I made some money this year, by selling some stock at a higher price than I paid for it. I owned that stock for less than six months. So, it was a "shorter-term gain." I own some other stocks, which is now trading below the price I paid for it. I bought this stock five months ago. Should I sell this "loser" now, to establish a tax loss, or wait until the end of the year?

A. My salary is around $5,000 a year and I have no other income. The answer to your question depends not so much upon tax considerations but upon the kind of stock you own. If it is a quality stock, with a good outlook and you feel that it will rise in value in the future, hang on to it.

But, if it's a real clunker, unload it. Put your money to better use elsewhere. You can use the loss you establish when you sell it to offset the profits you made on your other stock.

In your case, it doesn't make any difference whether you sell now or wait until you have owned the stock for more than six months (at which point it would become a "long-term capital loss") as long as you establish that loss this year.

When you file your annual

Federal tax return and compute your capital gains, you use your short-term losses to offset your short-term gains and you use long-term losses to offset your long-term gains.

If your short-term losses exceed your short-term gains, you use the rest of the loss to offset your long-term gains. And, if your long-term losses exceed your long-term gains, you use the rest to offset your short-term gains.

If, after doing this computation, you still show a net loss, you can use up to $1,000 of that loss to offset your ordinary income.

If you show losses, above and beyond all this, the balance may be "carried over" as a short-term capital loss and may be used to offset short-term capital gains for each of the next five years or to offset ordinary income (up to $1,000 a year) for each of the next five years.

In your particular case, there will be no long-term capital gain to report. So, whether you establish a short-term or a long-term loss by selling that loser this year, it won't make any difference —taxwise.

Q. I think my broker has gone out of his mind. He says that, if I want to establish a profit for tax purposes this year, I must sell the stock involved no later than Dec. 22. But he also says that, if I want to establish a loss for tax purposes this year, I can sell the stock involved right up through the last business day of the year. Has my broker flipped his lid?

A. No. He's right. Friday, Dec. 22, is the fifth from last business day of 1961. Look at a calendar. Saturday, Sunday and Monday (Christmas Day) are not business days. The remaining business day are Dec. 26, 27, 28 and 29.

Because of the "four-day delivery" of securities traded in "regular way transactions" (the way most stock transactions are executed) the Internal Revenue Service rules that, if you sell at a profit you can establish that profit for the current year only if you sell no later than Dec. 22. However, if you sell at a loss any time right up through the last business day of the year (Friday, Dec. 29, this year) the IRS rules that the losses are established this year.

It does seem silly. But those are the rules of the revenooers.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Boro Football Coaches Get Bad Raps

JERRY STULGAIKIS and Jack Kist, football coaches at the ooro high school were handed bad raps last week.

Stulgaitis was criticized for saying that his team was going to lose to Northampton and Kist was blasted by some spectators at the East Stroudsburg-Nazareth game for punting on third down early in the game.

Many people felt that Stulgaitis should have filled his players with the old baloney of "we have a chance to beat Northampton if every player gives us 100 per cent effort." That's been tried in the past against Northampton and it didn't work. Last year, when there was no talk of losing to the Konkrete Kids Northampton romped 73-14.

No one with any football sense believed that Stroud Union could have defeated Northampton and most of the area football followers were voicing the same opinion. So Stulgaitis gave his feelings on the Northampton get-fat party and he's a bum.

Real Reason For Stulgaitis' Statement

But here's the real reason Stulgaitis' "were going to be beat," statement—it was made as a reverse psychology move.

There was little chance of getting the Mountaineers aroused with rah-rah talks but Stulgaitis thought he could plant some sparks by admitting defeat. It's not the worst idea in the world and one that Knute Rockne used many times at Notre Dame. The only difference is that the Irish won and Stroud Union lost to a club that had better football players.

It took only a five-minute talk with East Stroudsburg State College Jack Gregory to clear up the Cavaliers' third-down punts.

Nazareth Lost Because Of Punts

"East Stroudsburg won because it punted on third down and Nazareth lost because it refused to punt on third down," said Gregory.

Kist punts on third down in his own territory, because it gives him a buffer down if something goes wrong with the snap from center or the punter drops the ball. If the punt is on fourth down and one of these things happens, the other team gets the ball but if it is a third down boot, the kick team gets another chance.

And Gregory brings up another point. When you punt on fourth down, your opponent knows you are going to kick and can rush nine men, trying to block the punt. But if it is a third down kick, the defenders can't take a chance on rushing so many men and the kicker has a better chance of getting off a good punt.

Twice against Nazareth, East Stroudsburg booted the ball on third down and both were excellent kicks. In the closing minutes of the game, Nazareth held a five point lead and had the ball on its own 20, with a third and nine set-up. But instead of going into punt formation and making the Cavaliers guess, Nazareth ran a play into the line that gained nothing. Then it was fourth and nine and the Eagles had to punt. Nine Cavaliers rushed the Eagle kicker and a seven-yard punt resulted. However, East Stroudsburg lost the ball two plays later on a pass interception.

Punt Rush Paid Off For Kist

Again the Eagles had a chance to punt on third down with long yardage to go but passed it up and Kist sent nine men in on the kicker on fourth down. The second punt was longer than the first but the Cavaliers still put the ball in play well into Nazareth territory and on that drive won the game.

Kist did wait to punt until fourth down deep in his territory in the Stratton and got burned. The snap from center sailed over the punter's head and the Slaters took over on the Cavalier seven-yard line and scored on the first play.

So sit in the stands and eat your hot dog and wave your pennant. Cheer when your team scores and groan when the other team scores but let the coaches do their job.

Senators Get 1st Choice In Minor League Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Finishing last in the American or National League has its only reward—top priority in the national major league draft.

The Washington Senators, tied with Kansas City for last place in the American League 1961 pennant race, will have the No. 1 pick of more than 1,000 eligible minor league players at the selection meeting in Tampa, Fla., Nov. 27.

Short Included

This group includes Frank Zupo, Baltimore's bonus catcher of a few years back; pitcher Billy Short, considered one of the New York Yankees' finest farm hands only two years ago; Ron Henry, who impressed as a catcher with Minnesota last spring; pitcher Jim Bronstad, a Yankee farm-hand; catcher Danny Kravitz; second baseman Jim Baumer; outfielders Lou Jackson and Gino Cimoli; infielders Chet Book, Rick Herrscher, Julio Becquer, Ossie Virgil and Frank Torre; and pitchers Rudy Hernandez, Gerry Heintz, Ted Abernathy, Aubrey Gatewood, Cal Browning and Dave Egan.

Also on the list are such former big leaguers as Ray Jablonski, Reuben Gomez, Duke Maas, Dusty Rhodes, Luke Easter, Rip Republiki, Billy Klaus, Bob Hale, Moe Drabowsky, Warren Hacker, R. C. Stevens and Rocky Nelson.

Some 20 players may be drafted this year. Last year the majors drew 23 players at a cost of $497,000. An additional 36 players were chosen in the minor league draft which followed that of the big fellows.

Won Coin Toss

The Senators won the right to make the first selection by the toss of a coin with the Athletics. The Philadelphia Phillies, National League tail-enders, will have second choice and the Athletics third. The clubs will continue to alternate according to their leagues and inverse order of finish last season. Thus, the world champion New York Yankees will have the 18th and last pick.

Houston and New York, new comers to the expanded 10-team National League, will be permitted to make their selections at the completion of the regular draft. While the other clubs may draft as many players as they wish, provided they don't exceed their 40-player limit, the Colts and Mets will be restricted to two players each.

Last month, at the conclusion of the World Series, Houston received 23 players and New York 22 from the other National League clubs in a special player draft. Each club shelled out nearly 2 million dollars.

He did indicate that three of the teams, Citadel, Furman and Tampa will either make or break their chances on this Saturday's performances. East Stroudsburg and Southeast Louisiana have completed their schedule. Furman, which has already lost two games, closes its season against Clemson.

East Stroudsburg, which had a 7-1 season this year, has the best record of any of the teams being considered.

Any player participating in an unseasoned game, under the NCAA rule, would lose a year of college varsity eligibility.

After the PIAA statement of February that it had no jurisdiction, the NCAA came up with an interpretation of its rule that failure of a state organization to act would constitute disapproval.

The PIAA then gave blanket approval of all games at its March session. At its October meeting, the board restated its original position and advised sponsors of all-star games they "should seek redress and clarification on this matter from the NCAA."

New PIAA Stand On Star Games

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association (PIAA) once again has washed its hands of the high school all-star games controversy.

The PIAA's board of control decided at its October meeting to reaffirm its policy, adopted last Feb. 1, that the activities of youngsters between the time they graduate from high school and enter college is outside its jurisdiction.

The board on March 21, temporarily abandoned that policy when it gave blanket approval at all all-star games in Pennsylvania for one year.

pretation of a new National Collegiate Athletic Association rule, adopted Jan. 11, requiring state high school athletic organizations to decide the merits of all-star football and basketball games in their states involving high school players.

Any player participating in an unseasoned game, under the NCAA rule, would lose a year of college varsity eligibility.

Tangerine Bowl Still Eyeing ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG State College is still in the running for a bid to the Tangerine Bowl.

Cel Wehmeyer, Director of the bowl, which is held Dec. 29 in Orlando, Fla. told the Daily Record by phone last night, that East Stroudsburg is one of five teams still being considered for the final invitation. A week ago the bowl named Middle Tennessee State College as one of the competing teams.

"We are still looking at Furman, East Stroudsburg, Tampa, Southeastern Louisiana and Citadel," said Wehmeyer.

Saturday night, the bowl had narrowed its choices to four, dropping Citadel, which was beaten 44-8 by Florida State. However, Wehmeyer said Citadel had been renamed because the bowl group felt that Florida State was out of Citadel's class and the loss should not count against the South Carolina school.

Wehmeyer said the final team will be selected Monday at 9:30 p.m. He added that all of the schools still in the running have an equal chance of getting the bid.

He did indicate that three of the teams, Citadel, Furman and Tampa will either make or break their chances on this Saturday's performances. East Stroudsburg and Southeast Louisiana have completed their schedule. Furman, which has already lost two games, closes its season against Clemson.

East Stroudsburg, which had a 7-1 season this year, has the best record of any of the teams being considered.

No Sugar For LSU 11

Louisiana State University's athletic director, Jim Corbett, Tuesday turned down an invitation for LSU to play in the Sugar Bowl football game in New Orleans on

New Year's Day.

Corbett said he based his decision on a resolution by the University Athletic Council and the team's "strong indication" they preferred an out-of-state trip if they are given the opportunity.

After removing LSU from the Sugar Bowl picture, he shut out all discussion of any other bowl until after the season-ending Tulane-LSU game here Nov. 25.

In making a bowl selection, he said, the council and administration "give most serious consideration to the wishes of the football players."

Corbett said he met with Sugar Bowl officials Monday and they asked for an immediate answer.

"I had to give them 'no' for an answer when I learned of the team's feeling," Corbett said. "And that answer would have been no different three weeks from now."

Burrows Will Continue As District Head

RALPH BURROWS, principal of East Stroudsburg High School, has been re-elected chairman of District 11, PIAA.

Burrows and the other officers of the district were re-elected at the group's annual banquet at Parkland High School Monday.

The district also voted to limit high school teams to 22 basketball games, including PIAA play-offs.

Burrows, who suffered a broken head bone recently, was unable to attend the meeting.

The group offered amoment of silence for Dr. Frank Maguire, of East Stroudsburg, former PIAA Commissioner on Officials, who died several months ago.

Bout Cancelled

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Don Provot of Providence, who was to have met Attilio Tondo of Suffern, N.Y., in the main 10-round fight here Monday night suffered a foot injury while doing roadwork.

The bout has been cancelled.

Trio Of Warriors To Play In Gem City Football Bowl

THREE East Stroudsburg State College football players have been selected to participate in the Gem City Bowl football game at Erie on Thanksgiving morning.

The bowl, an all-star affair, features both major and small college football players from the Eastern Seaboard and the Midwest.

The Warrior players are Moe Barber, an end from Dickinson City, Jack Casselbaum, a guard from Elizabethtown and Russ Rogers a tackle and place-kicker from Morris Hills, N.J.

Another East Stroudsburg player, Ed (Roadblock) Becker, an end from Quakertown was selected for the Copper Bowl game in Tucson Arizona but will not be able to participate. Becker tore a ligament in his left knee in East Stroudsburg's final game two weeks ago. The Copper Bowl pairs a team of major college all-stars against a team of small college all-stars. The game is considered as one of the major all-star bowls.

Grid Banquet

The announcement of the bowl selections was made by East Stroudsburg football coach Jack Gregory at a banquet for the team at the Penn-Stroud Hotel last night.

The affair was attended by about 75 people and was sponsored by Harold Schisler, a Northampton undertaker. Schisler's son, Art is a guard on the Warrior team and his son-in-law is Whitey Reimer, who starred for Syracuse last season.

Gil Castree of Doylestown, an official in the American Football League, was the main speaker. Castree discussed the differences in college and pro football and of the American and National Football League.

Castree served for 12 years as an NFL official and worked the Cleveland-Detroit championship game in 1957.

Becker is only the second player from the Pennsylvania State College Conference to be honored with a bid to the Copper Bowl. West Chester center Larry Caparo earned a bid last year.

The three players selected for the Gem City Bowl are not the first Warriors to earn that distinction. Last year, Dick Wol-slayer and Sterling Brown played in the game.

Tennessee Star Picked As AP's Back Of The Week

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer
Mallon Faircloth, a rugged sophomore who spearheaded Tennessee to one of the biggest upsets of the Southeastern Conference football season, was named Associated Press back of the week Tuesday.

The 1-year-old tailback generated much of the impetus as the Vols turned back nationally ranked Georgia Tech 10-6.

Faircloth was closely pressed for the honor by another 1-year-old sophomore, quarterback Frank Budka, an all-purpose leader in Notre Dame's 26-20 victory over Pittsburgh. Other backs gaining wide support were Walt Rappold of Duke, Wendell Harris of Louisiana State, Tom Batten of Florida, Gary Hertzfeldt of Utah, Tom Haggerty of Columbia, George Reed of Washington State, Chuck Lamson of Wyoming, Jim Saxton of Texas and Kermit Alexander of UCLA.

Faircloth, a 182-pounder from Cordele, Ga., got the Vols vital yardage time and again in the bitter struggle with Georgia Tech. He also threw a 22-yard scoring pass in the final quarter to Mike Stratton for the clinching touchdown.

Budka passed for one touchdown and set up another. On defense he intercepted a pass which led to a score and stole another on the Irish 6 near the end of the game. Budka also recovered a Pitt fumble.

Rappold helped Duke get off winging in its 30-9 upset of Navy, connecting on a touchdown pass and running 45 yards for another score in the first period. Harris rang up 18 points as LSU won its seventh straight 30-0 over North Carolina, with two touchdowns, a field goal and three conversions.

Batten's passing carried Florida to a 21-14 thriller over Georgia. The former third-stringer passed for three touchdowns.

Hertzfeldt also starred as a clutch passer Saturday in Utah's 21-12 upset of nationally ranked Colorado.

Haggerty rammed for two touchdowns, clinching a 35-14 Columbia victory over Dartmouth that gave the Lions the Ivy League lead. Reed got three touchdowns, including the winner, as Washington State surprised Oregon 22-21.

Lamson was a man-of-all-work for Wyoming's Cowboys. The slick runner-passer rushed for 117 yards and two touchdowns, threw for one and kicked a pair of conversions in Wyoming's 33-7 victory over New Mexico.

Saxton piled up 171 yards running, scored once, and set up a touchdown when he picked off a fumble in mid-air in Texas' 33-7 defeat of Baylor.

Alexander, UCLA's top-flight wingback, teamed with twin tailback stars Bobby Smith and Mike Haffner, and caught five passes for 130 yards and one touchdown as the Bruins downed Texas Christian 28-7.

Iowa State Back Leads NCAA Stax

Dave (Hoppy) Hoppmann, Iowa State tailback, is the new major college football leader in total offense and rushing, NCAA Service Bureau figures showed Tuesday. The Junior from Madison, Wis., has gained 1,530 yards — 871 by rushing. Hoppmann, with two more games to play, is nearly 300 yards ahead of his closest, still-active competitor, Chon Gallegos of San Jose State.

Gross Out

Jerry Gross of Detroit actually is runnerup to Hoppmann, but the fine little quarterback is out for the rest of the season with a broken ankle. Gallegos, with 1,246 yards to Gross' 1,250, has one more game to play.

Jim Pilot of New Mexico State is second to Hoppmann in rushing yardage with 845 followed by Pete Redro of West Texas State with 796.

Hurth Resigns Met Position

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Hurth, former president of the Southern Association, has resigned as general manager of the New York Mets, it was announced Tuesday by club President George Weiss.

Weiss, former general manager of the New York Yankees who assumed the presidency of the new National League club last March, also announced the promotion of Johnny Murphy and Wid Matthews, who had joined the organization as scouts.

Murphy, a former big league pitching star, will serve as the Eastern administrative assistant and Matthews, who also played in the majors, will be the Western administrative assistant.

Junior License In Effect

HARRISBURG — The state's new junior drivers' license, which goes into effect today, "puts our very young drivers on notice that the driving privilege must be earned," State Police Commissioner Frank G. McCartney said today.

Beginning Wednesday, all applicants for Pennsylvania driver licenses who are under 18 years of age will be issued the red "junior" license which authorizes driving only under special restrictions.

The holder of the junior license will not be authorized to drive between the hours of midnight and 5 a.m., except in the company of a parent. If convicted of a traffic violation or involved in an accident caused by his own recklessness or carelessness, the driver's license will be suspended until he reaches 18 years of age.

"This new program puts our very young drivers on notice that the driving privilege must be earned," Colonel McCartney said. "It will help train these young drivers, at the beginning, to be safer adult drivers."
